Congress To-day.

SENATE. - The Senate, at the instance of Mr. BERRIEN, took up and ordered to be engrossed for a third reading the bill for the improvement of the Savannah river.

Mr. Archison made an ineffectual motion to go into executive session upon an Indian treaty. A motion was made, but it did not prevail, to take up the Deficiency bill; and the Senate then proceeded to the consideration of private bills.

House of Representatives .- The House went into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and resumed the consideration of bills relating to the Territories of the United States.

The Way the Wind Blows.

There is a little shifting of the wind in certain quarters just at this time. Some of our Democratic friends are beginning to acknowledge that General Scott may possibly receive the nomination of the Whig Convention! This is a concession we were hardly prepared for. We thought, from the deep interest they had all along evinced in our choice of a candidate, and their desire that we should do justice to Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Webster, that they would certainly overrule us in this matter. Indeed, it has occurred to us that in their Convention next Tuesday week they would even undertake the formal nomination of both candidates, and thus remove the necessity of our delegates' convening at all!

In the Pennsylvanian of yesterday (the Buchanan organ of Philadelphia) we find the fol-

"A Washington letter-writer says:

"'Mr. Fitz Henry Warren's resignation is full of political meaning. 'Lowliness is young ambition's ladder,' and the humble expect to be exalted.'

"Fitz Henry no doubt sees that no man bu Scott stands any chance of getting the Whig nom-ination, and, in the hope of obtaining something better in future under the man who will be the nominee, he resigns his place. Straws show which way the wind blows. The Assistant Post-master is an adroit and far-seeing politician, and like an old sailor, deserts the sinking ship of Captain Fillmore, preferring to take his chances with the vessel of Captain Scott, which is soon to be launched

The letter-writer alluded to, but not named, is "X.," of the Baltimore Sun-Dromio of Ephesus. a good and pure Democrat-sometimes ! and who is just now deeply interested in helping Dromio of Syracuse to fabricate public opinion and select the candidates who are to be pitted against each other, lest they might be themselves called upon, we suppose!

The reasons for Col. Warren's resignation being assigned by the Pennsylvanian editor, they must of course not be doubted by any one else; while it must also be acknowledged that straws-and blows! According to this proposition, we admit man, perceives the certainty of General Scott's present amiable, gentlemanly, and most estimable and able President. But that this has determined Mr. Warren's course is bad a guess that we could wish his nativity nearer Connecticut, or that he would hereafter venture upon nothing but certainties. Why Mr. Warren has resigned will be known when he shall have told it; and that will be after the accomplishment of a purpose far different from any scheme of political advancement of himself or any one else!

Imitate a Good Example.

Viator, the Washington correspondent of the Pennsylvanian, says:

"As the time approaches for holding the Dem ocratic National Convention, less of personal preference is manifested by those who are to select a candidate, and a noble devotion is apparently beginning to exercise its influence for the harmony of the Democratic party. "A first choice" is yielding to a desire to produce union, and whoever may be the nominee will be heartily and unanimously sustained."

We say to every Whig, "Go thou and do likewise." Your party and your country demands

Arbitrary Exercise of Power. We have read the memorial of Mr. T. J. Boyce, late a sailmaker in the United States service, and we think it reveals the most singular case of injustice we have ever become acquainted with. The memorial is easily read, and we trust it may find Pledges.

The New York Morning Star, a laborious and spirited Buchanan paper, is opposed to pledges, and says that "none are asked or expected from Mr. Buchanan." But that paper joins in the shouting invocation for General Scott to come out with a "complete letter-writer." Bright Star!

Only three persons are as much as thought of by the Whigs in connexion with the Presidency; but their opponents have many great men. Our three will be ample for a choice, however, and then the two chosen not to run will cheer the other on. That's the way we mean to

A clear sky and a pleasant sun are above us to-day, and a cool and pleasant air and tranquillity are around; and the people of Washington are as calm and tranquil as a summer sea, and industrious and prudent as a hive of honey-

The "Southern Rights" men of Alabama re called "copperheads" in that State. A poiAbolitionism in Virginia.

The Alexandria Age, a spirited and energetic Democratic paper recently established at Alexandria, Va., in publishing a communication in which Eastern Virginia is admonished that the West is inimical to slavery, makes the following re-

"Not only in the northwestern and middle ections of the old Dominion has the sentiment of abolitionism taken strong and deep root, but even here, in our very midst, it is springing into life, and bids fair, under the same kind of en-couragement it is receiving at the hands of our people, to become a fearful element in our social organization. Not only have we preached in Eastern Virginia of the Northern Abolitionist Church disseminating doctrines, which look and tend to the overthrow of our domestic institutions, but we have many sympathizing philantrophists among us, who, we are informed, are in the habit of not only tolerating, but of encouraging the assemblage of social parties of the juvenile darkies, by attending them in person, and even throwing open their private saloons for their entertainment. What is to be the end of all this nadness and fanaticism it requires no prophet to foretell; but if our people will continue to rush thus madly and recklessly on, we trust that the executors of our laws will increase their vigiance, and wherever and whenever a case arises that can be fairly brought to the notice of our tribunals of justice, that they will promptly arraign the offenders. We regard all gatherings of the kind in this light, and look upon the who encourage them as more culpable by far than the ignorant darkies themselves."

Cur Democratic friends declare that no two Whigs, whose sentiments do not perfectly accord on all subjects, can act in unison without evidencing the most flagrant disregard of principle; and many of our own party appear verdant enough to credit their sincerity.

"X.," who plays Dromio of Ephesus in the Baltimore Sun, is very sympathizing and tender-conscienced on this subject, and gives the most prayerful attention to every move made by the faithful among his whilom Whig confreres. But in his letter this morning he thus discourseth with respect to his present fraternity:

"The Constitutional Union Democrats of Geor gia will proceed in large numbers to Baltimore, and will no doubt be admitted, with the State Rights Democrats, to seats in the convention. They claim to represent the Democracy of Lumpkin's and Cobb's districts, two thoroughly Dem ocratic districts in the State, furnishing usually a majority of from nine to eleven thousand. Tw sets of delegates will also come from Mississippi. After the precedents furnished by the admissi of the Mecklenburg and Wolf delegates from Pennsylvania, in 1850, and the admission of the Barnburner and Hunker delegates from New York, in 1848, I do not see how any other rule can be adopted.'

Alabama.

Our readers will remember that Messrs. White and Abercrombie, the two Whig representatives in Congress from that State, recently advised the Whigs of Alabama to adhere to their Union organization. The Mobile Advertiser dissents strongly from this course. Messrs. White and Abercrombie are firm and decided men, but not impracticable. They will be sure they are right, and then go ahead. A Whig nominee, occupying a satisfactory position on the Compromise, will, as we are well assured, receive their hearty support. They have been true to the Whig party in darker days than the present.

Our last notice of the condition of the health of this gentleman was on Monday last. It has been slightly variable since then, but no worse, and it is our opinion that he is now better than he was during last week. His cough is at times painful; and but for this we should entertain hopes of seeing him again upon the Avenue.

Our information is derived daily, not from his medical advisers, but from intelligent and discerning friends who are every day at his bedside.

Restrictive.

We see it stated in the New York papers that newspapers-serve to show the way the wind Doyle, the intemperate maniac, who, in a fit of phrenzy, murdered Mrs. Connery, in New York day to witness the procession of the public city, last week, attempted to commit suicide, and schools and the presentation of their memorial to Warren, as well as every other clear-minded in the effort desperately wounded himself. Madame Goldschmidt's Concert.

The New York Mirror, of Wednesday, says: "The concert of Jenny Goldschmidt last night was crowded, and was one of her greatest triumphs in the new world. To criticize her performance would only be to repeat what has been said a thousand times-she sang, as only Jenny can sing, divinely. Every note was as a rapture loosened from the heart of melody—the soul of song. Her personal appearance was becoming her bridal-robes of rich, white silk, a delicate net-work of lace over the swelling bosom and a wreath of springy-green in her hair. She looked as of old, only more spirituelle-an Ottorose, plucked from its virgin stem, but neither drooping nor faded.

"Jenny was greeted with every applause she could have wished, and the shouts that crowned her closing Bird Song were somewhat akin to the madness of enthusiasm."

The editor of the Alexandria Gazette says he saw on Thursday quite an ingeniously-constructed boat, moved by paddle-wheels worked by hand. It was built in Dumfries, and has been purchased by several citizens of that place.

A WILD MAN.—The newspapers of Memphis, Tenn., and of Arkansas have, during a year past, roaming through the great Mississippi bottom in the latter State. Numerous travellers and hunt-ers have asserted that they have seen him, but none have ever been able to get near enough to give particulars concerning the strange being. The story is just revived again. The creature is said to be unmistakably a human being, over seven feet high, but with all the shyness and habits of a completely wild animal.

Mr. Forrest as Richelieu and Jack Cade.

No such audience as assembled last evening within the walls of the National Theatre to see Forrest as Richelieu has ever assembled in that building-except, probably, the crowd attracted by Jenny Lind, and that was not larger. Nun bers had to leave without being able to get seats; and numbers had to stand during the whole performance. That the universal expectation was realized, the breathless interest with which the play was listened to, and the loud and protracted applause that greeted the great actor, fully proved. Mr. Forrest surpassed himself in this character. He was dressed with great skill, and appeared before us, instead of a man of Herculean frame, a weak old cardinal; his aged cough, his feeble steps, and his trembling voice, all showing the careful student of the author, and the consummate artiste But it was in his delineation of the passions that he most excelled. In the whole range of the drama nothing has been witnessed finer than the scene when Forrest, as Richelieu, sends for De Mauprat, (Bowers,) to upbraid, to save, and to reward him. The piece itself abounds with gems, and beautifully and successfully were they brought out by Forrest last evening. The soft and winning voice when pleading for his sovereign's good-will; the dry, harsh, cracked tones. when criticizing some act of youthful folly; the trembling but towering outburst of fury when roused by insult-added to a face where every emotion was exhibited as if by magic, a form full of grace and dignity, even in old age, and a precision and elegance of pronunciation, never lost sight of in the stormiest scenes-these were attributes that won praise from the critic and the crowd-the scholar, the Senator, the many and the few. It was well observed by a gentleman that Mr. Forrest enunciated the French names of the piece with vernacular accuracy. His residence in France, ten or twelve years ago, was intended to perfect him in his profession, and especially in French. So with his personation of old men. He has studied, for days and weeks, from the life, the passions he depicted in Richelieu; and in order faithfully to represent Lear in his madness, he has regularly visited the hospitals of this and of other countries that he might copy exactly from nature. To-night he appears in his great character of Rolla, in the play of Pizarro, and will be powerfully sustained.

During Mr. Forrest's engagement here he will play Judge Conrad's startling play of Jack Cade, a play written expressly for Mr. Forrest, and intended to illustrate the importance of liberal principles to the people of every country. The generous contributions of this great actor to encourage our own writers have produced some brilliant efforts; but all were not stage-plays Jack Cade is, however, a real acting play; and he has performed it in England and in Ireland. under the very nose of royalty, as well as in this country, and always with immense success. #

I had a conversation vesterday with a gentleman who has travelled extensively in several of the upper counties of Maryland, and he assured me that the great mass of the bone and sinew of the people, those who do the voting, are decidedly favorable to General Scott, as the Whig candidate for President, in preference to any other man in the party; and that it was only those who have interests of a peculiar character to serve that prefer any other individual.

ELECTRO.

" And there were Giants in those days." The love of sight-seeing is a predominant passion in all ountries and among all people, and often is rewarded with only vexatious disappointments; and this propensity, if such it is, is as much manifested in the city of Washington as in any other city, and humbugging answers its turn occasion-ally. But there is among curiosities, sometimes, that which is meritorious and duly entitled to a large share of public patronage; and such is the case with the young giant boy now on exhibition at Odd Fellows' Hall, in this city. We are not afraid of being contradicted when we say that young McKaskill, from the highlands of Scotland, i the most perfect giant in the world. All our contemporaries who have seen him, through the North and South, con our in saving he is the largest man on earth, and as yet only a boy of nineteen years-nearly eight feet high, and waxing up to the round number of five hundred pounds weight. Preserve us from an army of Nova Scotla men, if this is one of her boys! His stay in this city is only for

THE MAYORALTY.

A S the friends of other candidates for this office are already active in their behalf, I deelre to present the name of the present incumbent, WALTER LENOX, esq., for re-election. It is to be expected that personal preference will, to some extent, govern the choice of many, but before the community generally, honest and discerning in its decision, is not the proper question, "What is the public interest?" It must be admitted by every reflecting citizen that gudden and uncalled-for change is not only unjust to the officer, but to the public interest. It takes away the personal motive and ambition which induce the faithful performance of duty, and loses to the public the benefit of official experience. If the present incumbent has discharged the duties of the office with ability and zeal, and can here after bring to it the advantage of practical experience, I trust that the people of Washington will not use the elective franchise to their own injury and the injustice of a public officer.
